It will make me more of a valuable asset to the organization. Convergence is a great opportunity to fulfill all my professional development goals at one time. I’ll learn new skills and do my job better.

I’ll bring back knowledge to share with the team. The practical and strategic knowledge I gain from Convergence can be put to use immediately.

I will be able to network with regulatory professionals worldwide. This is a unique opportunity to talk to people from teams like ours and find out how they make the most of trends and overcome challenges.

I can earn credits for my RAC recertification, or find out how to obtain the RAC. The preconference workshops and Convergence are worth 12 credits each. If I don’t have the RAC, I can take talk to people who have already earned theirs and attend informational sessions.

I can save my company money by learning about potential regulatory pitfalls and how to avoid them. The most knowledgeable leaders in regulatory will be at Convergence. This is our chance to learn from them and implement their advice.

I will have direct access to representatives from health authorities like FDA, EMA and more. I’ll get to hear what the future holds for their organizations and ours, and talk to them about how to make our interactions the most productive.

After Convergence is over, I’ll still have access to all the sessions. The workshops and sessions at Convergence provide me with notes and presentation materials so my learning will continue when I am back in the office.

I will grow my professional network. After Convergence ends, I can network with other regulatory professionals from whom we can give input and ideas on Regulatory Exchange.

I can meet vendors connected to our industry. I will have made important connections with vendors and consultants who can help us get where we need to go.

I’ll bring back best practices learned from the most knowledgeable leaders in regulatory. Convergence is the most important gathering of regulatory professionals in the world, all eager to share knowledge and insight that can benefit our company.
